To Whom It May Concern:

Under Italian law, all Italian citizens are required to register in Italy any changes to their civil status, including marriages, divorces, births, and deaths.

In order to register a divorce decree issued by a court in the United States, the Italian authorities require documentation confirming that the divorce judgment has become final and legally effective, namely that the time for filing an appeal has expired and that no appeal has been filed.

For this reason, the applicant has been asked to provide a document commonly referred to as a "Statement of No Appeal."

We understand that many U.S. courts do not routinely issue a document with this specific title. However, many courts are able to provide an official statement, certificate, or letter confirming that:

- the judgment is final;
- the time allowed for filing an appeal has expired; and
- no appeal has been filed.

To facilitate this process, we have attached a sample statement (see page 2). The wording is provided solely as a courtesy and does not need to be reproduced verbatim. Any official document issued on court letterhead, or signed by the Clerk of Court or another authorized court official, containing substantially the same information, will generally satisfy the requirements for registration in Italy.

Once completed, the document should be returned to the applicant, who will arrange for any required apostille and Italian translation before submitting it to this Consulate General.

Should you require any additional information regarding this request, please do not hesitate to contact our office.

Thank you for your assistance and cooperation.
